5 tips to get your home ready for Colorado's cool season

With fall approaching and winter not too far behind, we are sure you are busy thinking about all the landscape projects you need to get done before old man winter sets in. Scheduling a fall cleanup, a sprinkler winterization, holiday lighting and more.

Here are some tips from our maintenance pros to get your home ready for Colorado's cool season.

1. Order your bulbs and pansies. Pansies are a great option for lasting color in your planting beds and pots that were once filled with annuals. Designscaapes Colorado will be taking orders until October 15th.

2. Keep on watering. Winter watering is essential to a healthy landscape. Hand watering turf, plants and trees provides supplemental nutrients during winters dry spells.

3. Have a cleaning day. Clean up fallen leaves and debris to keep unwanted pests and insects away for a healthy landscape.

4. Winterize your irrigation system. Prevent the pipes in your home from freezing and bursting by winterizing your irrigation system.

5. Schedule your seasonal decor and holiday lighting design and installation. Let our team design and install a festive holiday display so you can be the talk of the neighborhood.

Tom Eddy

Commercial Maintenance Account Manager

During his time at Designscaapes Colorado, Tom has enjoyed the great team that he is surrounded by each day and the positive reputation Designscaapes Colorado has within the landscape industry. One of our core values is to "Do what is right...always". Tom holds this value close in his day-to-day activities. He states, "As with most landscaping operations, there is more than one way to do things. In doing things the right way, you will not only achieve a better result but these results will directly affect the longevity of the landscape." As a Colorado native himself, born and raised in Fort Collins, Tom's adrenaline for motorsports - track days, autocross and adventure drives account for his time away from the office.
